Little Garrison

By LIEUTENANT BILSE

The book that upset the German Army and caused an international sensation.

An authorized, copyrighted translation with an Introduction of telling force by WOLF VON SCHIERBRAND, author of "Germany: The Welding of a World Power," etc.

Lieutenant Bilse tells the grim story of the German Army's deep descent in an entirely unaffected manner, comprehensively, irrefutably and strikingly. That this story, which is told in the form of a novel, went home to the soul of the German people, is proved by the fact that within a couple of weeks after its publication

MORE THAN 100,000 COPIES HAD BEEN SOLD

Lieutenant Bilse's book has since formed the theme of heated debates in the "Reichstag," and the "Kaiser" himself was forced much against his will to take notice of it. That the book is an epoch-making one cannot be denied.

Columns, and in some cases pages, about the book, have already been published in the New York World, Times, Herald, and other leading papers throughout the country.

"Lieut. Bilse is famous; Germany is quivering with indignation. . . . All the world is reading his book now."—New York Times.

"Truly, 'A Little Garrison' is an extraordinary book."—New York Herald.

TWO PROMISING NOVELS

I.

THE dramatic events at Fort Dearborn have long been waiting for some one to build them into a romance of the most thrilling character.

The publishers feel that this new writer whom they have discovered has made the most of the extraordinary possibilities of the Chicago massacre and the stirring scenes that led up to it.

II.

LA SALLE, one of the most romantic figures in American history is the hero, and the story is woven around his life in France and his adventures in the New World.

The barest account of such a career would make perfect romance, but in this case it has been invested with a fascination of narrative that will captivate novel readers.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

Full color reproductions from paintings in oil by THE KINNEYS—a style of work that has made them famous in two years.

CHARLOTTE WEBER, a young artist who possesses the historical instinct to an unusual degree, has made six striking pictures.

In short—two unusually exciting and well-told romances, perfect in illustration and make-up—something for both the bookseller and the bookbuyer to anticipate

THESE little illustrations are to be used in my new, day after day, advertising of Trelawny.

By the way, women seem to especially enjoy this cleverly written story of an artist who is more or less a scamp.

The Wings of the Morning is, as perhaps you know, a book so generally liked and praised that dealers this year will have in it a most satisfactory seller. My new advertising for Wings of the Morning will start right away. Without telling too prematurely what this new selling plan is, I simply give fair warning to the trade that the forthcoming advertising in the Saturday Evening Post and Collier's will cause some very hasty calls for The Wings of the Morning.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. will publish shortly a romance by Halliwell Sutcliffe, entitled "A Bachelor in Arcady."

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish on the 29th inst. "The Close of the Day," a new novel by Frank H. Spearman, author of "The Daughter of a Magnate," etc.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish at once a translation of "A Little Garrison," by Lieutenant Bilse, that caused an international sensation when it was discovered that it attacked the abuses in the German army. The translation has been made, with the consent of the author, by Wolf von Schierbrand, author of an authoritative work on "Germany," etc. Lieutenant Bilse's book, since its suppression, has formed the theme of heated debates in the Reichstag, and the German Emperor himself was forced much against his will to take notice of it.

E. J. CLODE, New York, announces for immediate publication a work entitled "Hospitality at Small Expense," by Christine Terhune Herrick, a handbook of useful suggestions on various forms of entertainment, such as A Sunday Night Supper, A College Girl's Luncheon, An Afternoon Tea-Party, A Rose-Wedding Breakfast, etc. The new story of Louis Tracy's that Mr. Clode will publish in the spring is said to be as romantic in setting and plot as "The Wings of the Morning," which has been so well received that it is selling better to-day, five months after publication, than ever.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have been obliged to defer the publication of Fannie Merritt Farmer's new book entitled "Food and Cookery for the Sick and Convalescent," a work that is designed to meet the needs of the trained nurse, the mother, or any one having care of the sick. The book, which is the result of years of study, may be expected some time before the end of this month. They have in preparation a new Western novel by John H. Whitson, author of "Barbara." The new book will be entitled "The Rainbow Chasers," and will give a vivid account of a Kansas land "boom."

A. S. BARNES & Co. will publish shortly Joseph C. Lincoln's first novel, "Cap'n Eri, a Story of the Coast," the coast being Cape Cod, which was Mr. Lincoln's early home. The genuine humor which Mr. Lincoln has shown in his short stories and the success of his verses have aroused a special interest in his forthcoming book. Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, president-general of the International Sunshine Society, has just finished a comprehensive book upon ways in which women can earn money. Her book is based upon actual personal experience in a variety of occupations, and also upon the experiences noted from thousands of letters and personal interviews. Mrs. Alden's book will be the first volume in the Woman's Home Library which Mrs. Margaret E. Sangster is editing for Messrs. A. S. Barnes & Co.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish at once a number of books, of which the following are those of chief interest: "The Policy and Administration of the Dutch in Java," by Dr. Clive Day; "Points at Issue," by Professor Henry A. Beers, of Yale; the second volume of The Cambridge Modern History, which is devoted to "The Reformation;" "The Hour Glass, and Other Poems," by W. B. Yeats; Edmund Gosse's "Life of Jeremy Taylor," in The English Men of Letters series; "The Divine Vision, and Other Poems," by the Irish poet and mystic who prefers to be known as "A. E.;" "Transitional Eras in Thought," by Professor A. C. Armstrong, of Wesleyan University; and the first volume of "A Laboratory Manual of Electro-Magnetic Machinery and Apparatus," by Bernard Victor Swenson and Budd Frankenfield.

The first English version of "Singoalla," by the author of "The last Athenian," by critics often pronounced his masterpiece. The scene is Smaland, Rydberg's native province in Sweden. A romantic wedding and dramatic separation are among the striking situations; there are also tragic incidents such as a murder in the forest and scenes arising from the Black Death are depicted.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 16, 1904.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION ON FICTION AND "JUVENILES."

THE action of the American Publishers' Association this week shows that the majority of the trade is not yet ready for the inclusion of fiction in the net system, though we believe that a step forward in this direction is only a matter of time after the net system shall have been thoroughly established. We cannot repeat too often that it is matter for congratulation that despite the attacks on the net system so much progress has been made with so few drawbacks in the short space of two years, whereas in other countries twice and thrice this time has been required to effect as much betterment in trade methods. It is, on the whole, wise in such matters to go slowly; and although there will doubtless be dissatisfaction here and there that the Publishers' Association is not ready for another forward step, yet it must be admitted by the advocates of that step that there are many reasons for holding back. One of these is the geographical extent of this country, which makes carriage from the publishing centers to the extreme parts of the country a costly expense which must be paid for out of the margin of profit—the result of which is that prices on fiction are fairly held in part of the country, and that a reduction of price consequent on the application of the net system would work hardships. This, of course, is an objection to the whole net system, and the present situation is really a compromise between the new net system and the old "go-as-you-please" and demoralizing method. A decided advance, however, was made in limiting the discount on fiction, so that fiction cannot be sold at absolutely cut-throat prices as bait or advertisement for other lines of goods.

The movement to include "juveniles" as fiction is perhaps so strong that it cannot be stayed. We regret this fact for the two reasons that it will be extremely difficult to define the limits of "juveniles," and that the change is a step backward instead of a change forward. There is considerable pressure, however, from houses which deal largely in "juveniles," and only protest from the retail trade to such houses, between the present time and the next meeting of the Association, can avert the change. It is important that the real feeling of the retail trade, pro and con, should thus be communicated either directly to the interested houses or to the columns of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, which invites communications on this subject.

THE meeting of the Postal Progress League and the vote of the American Publishers' Association are fresh indications of the interest in postal reform which will presently acquire such momentum that some action at Washington will be necessitated. Many extreme suggestions have been made, but out of them all should result a measure of progress which will be fairly in line with the practical operations of the department and will be acceptable to Congress.

WE print elsewhere an advertisement bidding for library patronage in which the advertiser makes it a feature of his bid that he is on the "black list" of the American Publishers' Association. This is scarcely a matter for pride, since the purpose of the Association is chiefly to obtain justice for the several classes of book dealers and bookbuyers and to strengthen the trade without detriment to the public. In that endeavor every bookseller of experience and loyalty to the trade should join. The question at issue between publishers and librarians is solely on net books, and the advertisement can scarcely be taken to mean that on such books fifty per cent. is offered, while on some lines of books the prices are so artificial that any dealer can offer this seeming discount—the more's the pity. [The advertiser in question, to whom proof of this comment has been shown, has sent a communication too late for inclusion, which we must defer till our next issue.—ED. P. W.]

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION—ANNUAL MEETING.

THE annual meeting of the American Publishers' Association took place at the rooms of the Aldine Association, Fifth Avenue and Eighteenth Street, New York City, on the afternoon of January 13. There were present thirty-eight out of the seventy-two members who now form the association, representing a large majority of the voting power. Mr. Charles Scribner, the president, occupied the chair, and called the meeting to order shortly after two o'clock.

The first order of business was to elect a new Board of Directors, which resulted in the choice of the old Board with the exception of Mr. Mifflin, who declined re-election, and in whose place Mr. Albert Houghton was chosen, the Board therefore consisting now of Colonel George B. M. Harvey, of Harper & Brothers; Craige Lippincott, of J. B. Lippincott Company, and Albert Houghton, of Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

Mr. Scribner next reported on the status of the litigation in which the Association is involved, announcing that the Macy suit would come up for a hearing on the 18th inst.

The two important, in fact the only two questions that came up for consideration, were the placing of fiction on the net list, and the placing of juveniles on the basis on which fiction is now sold.

After much serious discussion the question of placing fiction on the net list was put to a vote, showing 103½ votes against and 45 in its favor. When the vote had been canvassed the following resolution was presented and passed:

Moved, that absent members be given the privilege of voting by letter on the question of making fiction net, and on that of according to all juveniles the treatment now accorded to fiction.

Regarding the question of placing juveniles in the class now held by fiction, the following resolution was ordered to be spread on the minutes:

Moved, that after April 1, 1904, all juveniles be accorded the same treatment as that now given to fiction.

The vote of those present stood 90 in favor and 47½ against the motion.

As both questions must also receive the votes of the absent members neither has yet been settled, although the result seems to be foreshadowed by the vote of those present.

The following resolution was then presented and voted upon favorably:

Moved, that the American Publishers' Association instruct its Postal Committee to inquire into the efforts of the Postal Progress League to secure postal advancement, and into its endeavors to secure a parcels post and to secure postal rates not inimical to the interests of publishers and booksellers, and if said committee shall approve of such work, such committee to report to the Board of Directors for any further action.

The motion that the rule requiring publishers to add carriage charges to net books be repealed was defeated, and the following motion was carried:

Moved, that the secretary be requested to write to each member of the Association to call his attention to this rule [to add publisher's carriage] with an urgent request that this rule be followed in all cases.

The meeting was then adjourned sine die.

THE POSTAL PROGRESS LEAGUE ON POSTAL ADVANCEMENT.

A MEETING in behalf of postal advancement was held under the auspices of the Postal Progress League at the rooms of the Board of Trade and Transportation, 203 Broadway, New York, at 2 P.M., Wednesday, January 13, at which about twenty were present in spite of bad weather. Colonel Albert A. Pope, president of the League, presided.

The following resolutions were introduced by the secretary, Mr. James L. Cowles:

Whereas, The business, social, agricultural and labor interests of this country demand that H. R. 7874, being a bill prepared under the direction of Colonel Albert A. Pope, president of the Postal Progress League, and providing for the consolidation of third and fourth-class mail matter and for the extension of our present parcels-post limit from 4 to 11 pounds, with rates 5 cents on a pound parcel, 25 cents on an 11 pound parcel, should be quickly enacted into law, now therefore be it

Resolved, That Congress be and is hereby requested to enact this bill into law before the close of this session, and

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the President and to both houses of Congress.

Mr. John Brisben Walker, of the Cosmopolitan, was convinced, from thirty years' experience in postal matters, that this would have about as much effect as water on a duck's back. John Wanamaker, when Postmaster-General, had told him that there were four insuperable obstacles to the obtaining of a parcels-post: 1st, the Adams Express; 2d, the American Express; 3d, the Southern Express, and 4th, Wells, Fargo & Co. Mr. Walker predicted that the express companies would always have power to defeat such a bill; that Congress in fact would pay no attention to it. "Merchants agree," said he, "that the government must first buy out the express companies at any price. The Government is probably losing $250,000,000 a year by not having a parcels-post."

Mr. Cowles, on the other hand, was confident that the entire agricultural interests of the country were behind this bill and would compel its passage—that no member of Congress from an agricultural constituency could oppose it and be re-elected.

The resolutions were passed, with the following amendment drafted by Mr. Walker:

Resolved, That we recommend to the Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade of the United States an appeal to Congress asking that the United States be given postal facilities equal to those possessed by the leading countries of Europe; and we further recommend the purchase by the Government of any private interests which may be affected by the adoption of such a postal system.

Mr. Walker strongly favored circulating books as cheaply as periodicals. He said that a man like John Wanamaker or Marshall Field at the head of the Post Office Department could, if given a free hand, organize a system that could carry any kind of mail matter profitably at one cent a pound. But when Mr. Wanamaker actually did attempt reorganization of the Post Office he found himself bound hand and foot by private interests.

H. Gaylord Wiltshire, of Wiltshire's Magazine, described some of the petty persecutions to which he had been subjected by Third Assistant Postmaster-General Madden, with the result that his magazine is now printed and mailed in Canada to all parts of the United States and to Great Britain and her colonies at  $\frac{1}{4}$  cent a pound, (the Canadian rate having been recently reduced from  $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  cent per pound on magazines.) Mr. Madden refused his magazine entry to second-class rates on the ground that it "advertised" Mr. Wiltshire, because his portrait was frequently inserted and editorials were signed "I"; and told him: "I could throw out Mr. Bryan if I wanted to, but I don't want to." Mr. Wiltshire considered this a dangerous precedent.

Mr. Walker said there was not a single periodical safe from Mr. Madden's rulings as at present put forth.

The following resolution was then considered and passed:

Resolved, That the President of the United States and the Postmaster-General are hereby requested to take advantage of the meeting of the World Postal Congress which convenes at Rome, Italy, March 21, 1904.

(1) To secure, if possible, reciprocal postal conventions with the countries of Europe at least, if not with all the world, similar to our present conventions with Mexico and with Canada.

(2) To bring this country into the existing international conventions for the exchange of postal parcels, for the exchange of letters and books of declared value, for the exchange of C. O. D. parcels, and for the issue of letters of identity, and into the international arrangement for subscriptions for magazines and for newspapers.

(3) To secure, if possible, a world postal currency and a world postage stamp.

Protest was made by several present against the sending of ex-Congressman Loud to represent this country at the Postal Convention at Rome, and a committee was appointed, consisting of the president, secretary and Mr. Patrick Farrelly, to draft a resolution of protest to be sent to Washington.

The meeting was then adjourned.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE DISCUSSES WHAT SELLS A BOOK.

THE January meeting of the Booksellers' League, held at the Aldine Association rooms on Wednesday evening, the 13th, was well attended and highly successful, an impromptu discussion of the subscription book question being a noteworthy feature of the occasion.

President Cass Richardson presided, and after those present had done full justice to an excellent menu, introduced Mr. Francis J. Bellamy as a guest of the evening. Mr. Bellamy, speaking on the subject "What Books People Buy," stated his belief that the merit of a book determines public taste in the long run, but that the bookseller shapes it in the beginning because he sizes up a customer and chooses a book for him accordingly. Mr. Bellamy thought that the booksellers are really the advance agents of literary taste in America. The next guest of the evening was Mr. Walter H. Page, who said, in part:

"What sells a book is a great conundrum. I have never found any one who could answer it. Some books we can account for after the event; some few take great hold on human experience; some strike the popular fancy, hold our attention for a day, a week, or a month, and then go by. But I doubt if any man can be sure in advance as to the sale of a book by an unknown author. There is one very large class of books that sell—the books that people buy for furniture. But what makes them sell?

"Occasionally we know by intuition that a book will sell, and it seems to me we—both publishers and booksellers—should cultivate this instinct. Do we study this point with sufficient scientific seriousness? There is a science in it. The bookselling business is not yet begun to be done in this country. If we brought to this quite the same shrewdness, the same enterprise, the same ability that other men have brought to other business interests in this country, a book that would sell 100,000 copies could be made to sell another 100,000, and another. The only reason it doesn't is that we haven't found how; but somebody will find out some day. To-day a book sells 100,000 copies in six months, and you cannot sell 100,000 in the next six months, and we cannot tell you how to do it; but I know there is another 100,000 people who would read it if you knew how to get at them. Few households of well-to-do people have a fair representation of books in proportion to furniture, carpets, etc. Some houses in the West foist 1,000,000 copies of a poor book upon the people by subscription and instalment plans; it is our duty to do this with our good books. Somebody will some day make a fortune by finding out the proper method and machinery for the distribution of books. It is time we were waking up in the booktrade to do what is done in other lines of business.

"There is a sort of satisfaction in handling a book, in having to do with it, if it be a really good book, that makes us live in an atmosphere of greatness; even in our humble relations we catch some reflection of the glory that makes the craft immortal. The more widely we spread good literature through a democracy the greater our service to our fellow-men. It is that that makes us feel more highly of our trade. From the author in his lonely study to the last man handling the finished book, there is a trail of glory that lifts it up, and in the measure that we spread its benefits among mankind we feel the measure of our success.

"We publishers and you booksellers are all gathered in the same task. In the practical, everyday workings of our life the author comes with his manuscript and says: 'The fruits of my midnight toil.' We bow reverently, read cautiously and print. We take the book to you and say: 'Gentlemen, a great author—a great book—we are the humble servants of genius,' and we deliver the result to you. You take it hesitatingly, order a few copies, pay your bills sixty, ninety days thereafter, and then when we come to see you on our next round and tell you we have another great author, you look up wisely and say, 'Oh, yes, you had one when you were here before. We have him still.' The author is approached with a very small check and very large regrets. 'The book after all was too good to sell—the booksellers told us it was too good to be appreciated.' So the poor publisher has his ribs cracked on one side and on the other, and finds no glory in it."

Mr. Frank N. Doubleday, also a guest, confined himself to asking the members of the League if there were any way by which subscription books could be sold in large quantities through the bookstores. This brought forth an interesting discussion, which was in substance as follows:

C. A. BURKHARDT. Most subscription books sell on the instalment plan. No bookseller has capital enough to put out books on the instalment plan.

W. H. PARKER. It takes entirely different training to sell books by subscription. In one case the customer comes to you; in the other case you have to go after your customer. It is a very different matter. The bookseller's profit is not large enough to allow him to go out on subscription books.

MR. DOUBLEDAY. Nor have young publishers much capital, yet the publisher is willing to carry accounts and pay even up to 25 per cent. commission for the sake of having trade.

S. F. McLEAN. Discredit has come to the subscription book business through the great amount of faking that has been done. Many subscription houses deal unfairly by the bookseller who acts as their agent. The self-respecting bookseller has fought shy because of this.

Here several members related their experiences with publishers of subscription books.

MR. PARKER. People soon tire of subscription books. We have sold several thousand dollars' worth of subscription books for people who have become tired of them.

C. F. CUTLER. As to the merit of a book, certainly it is never demerit that sells a book. I do not hesitate to say to publishers, without animosity: Bring us less trash and your good work shall turn out better results.

F. H. MARLING. Mr. Page is right in saying we have not yet the ability to extend our business as is done in other trades. The 10-cent magazines have shown us how. The people who read 10-cent magazines are in large measure the people who never had read a 25-cent or 35-cent magazine. We have to create a new market; the people who buy carpets and furniture must be taught to buy books. Some firms have learned this and have made fortunes by issuing large quantities of low-priced reprints for school teachers and others who cannot afford $1.50 books.

A. D. STRATTON. It is after all earnestness all along the line that counts in the sale of a book.

Mr. Page, following up the theme of his talk, told of a wealthy man living within twelve miles of New York whose house was lined with fine bookcases, in which he found only two magazines and a broken doll. The bookseller had not got in his work.

A SUIT OVER "LIMITED" EDITIONS.

A MISUNDERSTANDING has arisen over the question of a "limited" or "special" edition of a subscription book, and as a result Mrs. Eliza A. Sanderson, of Newark, N. J., has brought suit against Gebbie & Co. to be relieved of her contract to accept a set of the Author's edition of the works of Theodore Roosevelt in twenty-two volumes at $150 a volume. The plaintiff's contention is that the publishers had announced that only twenty-six sets of the Author's edition were to be printed from type specially designed for it. Instead of this it is alleged that the work had been printed from plates and that these identical plates had been used by the publishers to print other editions. Mrs. Sanderson also claims that a set of "The Confessions of Jean Jacques Rousseau," in ten sets at $6000 for the set, had not been published according to the representations of the publishers. The publishers deny that they defrauded the plaintiff and assert that they have kept every promise made in the contract.

FREE TEXT BOOKS TO ALL.

REPRESENTATIVE KNAPP, of New York, on January 9 introduced a bill in Congress to establish free text books in all public schools in the United States. It provides that the Commissioner of Education shall obtain a full list of the latest and best editions of books used in the public schools, and shall get the owner of each copyright to submit a sealed bid giving the price at which he will sell the copyright to the Government.

A school text book commission, with a representative for every State, appointed by its Governor, is to meet in Washington within six months and is to select such copyrights as will best supply the public schools of the country with one series of text books in each study. The intention is that the right to publish these books shall, when secured by the Government, be given free to all persons in the United States.

M'LOUGHLIN BROTHERS' "FIVE LITTLE PIGS" ENJOINED.

JUDGE LACOMBE, of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, January 8, on the application of ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, counsel for William Wallace Denslow and the G. W. Dillingham Company, enjoined the sale and publication of McLoughlin Brothers' "Five Little Pigs." The suit was brought against The Baker & Taylor Company, who sold the book, and the complaint alleged that William Wallace Denslow took the old nursery rhyme of "Five Little Pigs," and in conjunction with certain new and original illustrations and designs of the pigs, and other characters in various attitudes and postures, made a new and original publication and copyrighted the same under the title of "Denslow's Five Little Pigs." Some time after McLoughlin Brothers issued a publication of "Five Little Pigs" containing an exact copy of Mr. Denslow's illustrations. The complaint alleges that a mere inspection of the books shows that McLoughlin Brothers' "Five Little Pigs" is an imitation of Mr. Denslow's "Five Little Pigs," and contains exact copies of Denslow's original illustrations. Mr. Denslow and the G. W. Dillingham Company announce that they will proceed against any one else who is found selling McLoughlin Brothers' "Five Little Pigs."

COPYRIGHT IN THE BRITISH COLONIES.

W. MORRIS COLLES writes in the London Academy of November 28 regarding the rumor that the Australian printers and booksellers are making efforts to preserve the Australian market for themselves that "it has long been no secret that the whole incidence of colonial copyright has threatened to become a burning question in many parts of the British Empire. The Fisher Act of 1900 promised, at any rate for a time, to shelve the problem so far as Canada was concerned. The Imperial Government, moreover, by passing the Bill which has been repeatedly brought in—a Bill which has already received the all but unanimous approbation of the interests concerned—could have undoubtedly postponed the difficulty in other Possessions. The useful and harmless concession of protection to licensees would have adequately satisfied the Colonial Governments, especially if the old difficulty of their obtaining suitable editions of British works, where reprinting in the colony was out of the question, had been met as also proposed by an amendment of the provisions of the Foreign Reprints Act, now a dead letter. But, owing to the fatal policy of procrastination, which appears to be inevitable in copyright legislation, the opportunity has been allowed to pass by and there is every reason to fear that we shall soon have to face the question in its largest and most acute form.

"No useful purpose can be served by ignoring the far-reaching consequences of any legislation which affects the integrity of Imperial copyright, and, be it remembered, of the reciprocal relations arising out of it. If, as may reasonably be expected, other colonies follow the lead thus threatened, we shall have in prospect, in place of a copyright which is as wide as the Empire, a disjointed collection of local laws involving cumbrous and costly if not practically prohibitive conditions. The bare idea of manufacturing books in any large proportion of the British possessions simultaneously or often at all, in order to secure copyright therein, seems to be the crowning effort of the malign influence which has already made our copyright laws, both Imperial and colonial, a blot upon the statute book. Nor will the evil end here. Our arrangement with the United States, if far from idyllic, has placed a good many dollars in the pockets of the 'widely popular,' and its basis is reciprocity, and reciprocity under the conditions prevailing at the time of the Presidential proclamation, that is, an Imperial given in exchange for an American copyright. It is within the power of the President of the United States to rescind that proclamation at any moment, for the American Act expressly provides that the existence of the necessary conditions shall be determined by proclamation made from time to time. American publishers, who can through British copyright obtain protection for American works in Canada and Australia, are much more concerned in those markets, which they have been industriously exploiting, than with the English market itself or even with the profits on British books. If those markets are jeopardized, by local legislation, we may look out for reprisals. There are, indeed, many who maintain that the importation of any fresh conditions as regards British Possessions will absolutely abolish the reciprocity at present held to exist and endanger the existence of any copyright whatever for British books in the United States.

"It is impossible to argue here the constitutional question as to the competence of any Colonial Legislature to override an Imperial enactment and legislate for other than native books which are, as everybody knows, within its own absolute control. But since 1886, at any rate, Imperial copyright has applied to all books published in any part of the British Possessions, although the right of giving notice of the denunciation of the Berne Convention has been claimed by and is partially reserved to all British Colonies. An Imperial copyright is, however, the basis of our international bargains, and its diminution would provide a pretty kettle of fish. Without any boggling about it, this is the problem we shall sooner or later have to face, and not merely the effect of any Colonial Acts upon our own export trade. The retrospect is not reassuring. The old cry from our colonies for cheap books; the grievances of colonial authors down to 1886; the fiasco of the Foreign Reprints Act; the Canadian imbroglio; the muddle of colonial registration, and customs regulations—are all bad enough in themselves and demonstrate sufficiently the fatuity of our copyright legislation and the failure of Parliament to discharge its Imperial functions. Is it to be wondered at if the colonies in despair of any comprehensive Imperial code take the law into their own hands?"

THE GUINEA REWARD FOR PRINTERS' ERRORS IN THE BIBLE.

A GOOD many newspaper paragraphs having lately appeared regarding a guinea reward which is paid for discovering errors in Bibles, and the Bible Society having found it necessary to state publicly the position of that Society in regard to the matter, The Periodical, published by the Oxford University Press, thinks it may be well to give an account of the exact facts. "The question," according to The Periodical, "was first raised before a select committee of the House of Commons on the Queen's Printers' Patent—a committee which sat from July 28 to August 4, 1859, 'to inquire into the Nature and Extent of the Queen's Printers' Patent for England and Wales, so far as relates to the Right of Printing the Holy Scriptures; and to report their Opinion as to the propriety of any future Grant of that Patent.' John Bright was a member of that committee. In the Minutes of Evidence taken, we find that Thomas Combe, (who was called as being one of the printers of the University of Oxford,) was asked, 'Has the University of Oxford offered any prize for the discovery of errors?' 'Yes,' he replied, 'for a number of years; certainly for the last twenty years, and probably prior to that. We offer a sovereign,' continued Mr. Combe, 'for every error which is discovered in any one of our books.' 'Has that prize often been claimed?' 'I have only paid it three times in twenty years.' 'Were they important alterations or errors?' 'I cannot recollect what they were, but they were typographical errors overlooked by the reader.' How the pound grew into a guinea cannot now be explained; but the rule of the Oxford Press has been for many years to give a reward of one guinea to the first discoverer, (not being in the employ of the Press,) of a printer's error in the text portion of any authorized-version Bible printed at Oxford during recent years. It is believed that the other privileged printers—the Cambridge Press and the King's Printers—now follow the Oxford practice; and it is marvellous, considering the extent of the Bible regarded solely as a book, that this reward should be so seldom gained."

NEW YORK'S DUTCH RECORDS.

PROFESSOR OSGOOD, of Columbia University, together with Austin B. Keep, has been engaged by the city of New York to edit the minutes of the Common Council from the end of the Dutch reoccupation, in 1674, to the military occupation by the English in 1776. These records furnish the major part of the information in regard to the history of the administration of New York City for more than a century. An attempt was made by Dr. O'Callaghan, H. B. Dawson and W. W. Pasko to translate and print these records, but the attempts were never fully carried through. Valentine and other compilers have drawn largely from them for facts relating to the eighteenth century. The work on the years 1774-1776 has been already completed, and the copy is ready for the press. When the work is finished it will fill about nine volumes.

OFFICERS OF THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Stationers' Board of Trade, held at the rooms of the board on the 12th inst., the following officers were elected: President, Henry C. Bainbridge; 1st vice-president, James C. Aikin; 2d vice-president, Charles S. Kiggins; secretary-treasurer, Herbert M. Condit; attorneys and counsellors, Rounds & Dillingham. The following were elected to serve as Executive Committee: James C. Aikin, chairman; Frank D. Waterman, Robert Dickson, Lyman B. Sturgis, Miles Vernon, the president, ex-officio, and the treasurer, ex-officio. The following were elected to serve as the Arbitration Committee: Charles McLoughlin, chairman; Patrick Farrelly, Franklin Weston, William Keuffel, William B. Boorum, Jr., David A. Tower, and the president, ex-officio.

A PUBLISHER'S RIGHT TO A TITLE.

IN the case of W. H. Gannett, publisher of the magazine entitled Comfort, against William F. Rupert, publisher of the magazine entitled Home Comfort, to restrain the latter from using the word "comfort" in connection with his title, Judge Coxe, of the U. S. Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, in granting an injunction to restrain the defendant, said:

"This is a trade-mark case pure and simple. It is not a case of unfair competition. It is founded on a technical, common law trade-mark. With this distinction in mind it is obvious that many of the propositions argued by the defendant are irrelevant. For fifteen years the complainant and its predecessors have published a monthly periodical called 'Comfort.' Under this name a large, lucrative and growing business has been established. A person publishing a newspaper or a magazine may give it a name by which it is known and by which its authenticity is attested. This name is entitled to the same protection as if it were affixed to other articles of merchandise. The purchasing public know it by that name and no other. The name is a badge of origin and genuineness. It is as much a part of the proprietor's property as his counting room or printing press. A rival publisher has no more right to appropriate the name of the periodical than the individual name of its owner. But it is objected that 'Comfort' is a standard English word not fanciful or manufactured, but descriptive, suggesting the purpose and errand of the paper. It certainly is descriptive, but of what? Surely not of a family newspaper. Some of the synonyms of comfort are consolation, contentment, ease, enjoyment, happiness, pleasure, satisfaction, but would any of these be used by a rational being to describe a monthly journal intended to circulate in the rural districts? Would the word 'ease,' for instance, when applied to a newspaper convey to the reading public any accurate information of its errand or purpose or the character of its contents? It is thought not.

"'Comfort' is, it is true, a common English word free to all, but so are century, cosmopolitan, forum and arena. The last two are suggestive of ancient contests, physical and intellectual, but not of a modern literary review. Such words are continually being selected, arbitrarily, to designate publications which in time become known solely by the names so bestowed upon them, and such use is protected by the courts.

"The defendant is publishing a monthly paper circulating, in part at least, in the same territory as the complainant's paper and covering a somewhat similar field. He calls his paper Home Comfort. This is enough to justify the relief prayed for. It is of no moment that the proof fails to show deception, confusion or injury to any marked extent. Such proof is unnecessary where infringement of a valid trade-mark is clearly established. The defendant is using the complainant's property and, as he is acting without color of right, the complainant is entitled to have that use discontinued. If the defendant's contention be correct that actual damage must be proved before an injunction can issue, it follows that if to-morrow a new infringer should commence the publication of a paper with a Chinese copy of the complainant's trade-name on its title-page, the court would be powerless to grant relief until the infringement had been carried on long enough to cause actual, provable damage. Equity is not so helpless and impotent. It is the policy of the law to arrest the pirate before he actually makes off with the plunder.

"The complainant has waived an accounting. It follows that the decree must be reversed, with costs, and the cause remanded to the circuit court with instructions to enter a decree for an injunction restraining the defendant from infringing the complainant's trade-mark."

thor of several melodramas, one of which was "Nobody's Child," that achieved considerable success years ago. He was also the author of a history of the Democratic party, "Brownstone Fronts," and "Legends of Long Island," and published a magazine called The New Year. His body will be sent to Richmond.

THE REV. HENRY WILLIAM PULLEN, author of the clever skit, "The Fight in Dame Europa's School," of which nearly 200,000 copies were sold within a year, died in London on the 13th of last month. Mr. Pullen was born at Little Giddings, Eng., February 29, 1836. He was born in Paterson, N. J., February 25, 1816, and graduated from Princeton in 1834. He studied law but never practiced. In 1836 he joined the New York Evening Post, with which he was more or less closely connected for fifty years. For a time he also edited Putnam's Monthly and The Harbinger, the newspaper published by the Brook Farm colony. He edited a new edition of Bryant's prose and poetical writings, with a life. His "New Study of Shakespeare's Sonnets," which he published in 1900, attracted a considerable amount of critical attention. In 1842 he married Miss Fanny Bryant, daughter of William Cullen Bryant.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

SAMUEL E. McDONALD, the author of "The Other Girl," published by the Broadway Publishing Company, New York, is a colored schoolboy of Bushnell, Ill. The stories were written when he was eighteen years old. He is related to the well-known writer, Burghardt De Bois.

BRUNO LESSING, author of "Children of Men," published by McClure, Phillips & Co., it appears is the pseudonym of Rudolph Block, editor of the comic supplements to the Hearst newspapers. Mr. Block is thirty-three years of age. He has been connected with the New York Sun and the New York World. It was while as labor reporter for the Sun, covering a cloak-makers' strike on the East Side, that he became interested in the Jews and their suffering and poverty. To throw a light upon this strange and interesting life he wrote the stories in "Children of Men."

THE late George Gissing was one of the authors who wrote for Unwin's Autonym Library. His "Sleeping Fires," which appeared in that series in 1896, is interesting as differing widely in setting and tone from his other novels. Its backgrounds are not in the sordid London streets which the author elsewhere depicted with such power, but Athens and a fair English landscape, and the outlook on life is almost hopeful. The blend of classical and scholarly feeling with human sympathy shown in "Sleeping Fires" foreshadows Mr. Gissing's delightful book of travel, "By the Ionian Sea."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

A NEW story by W. D. Howells, "The Son of Royal Langbrith," has been begun in the January number of the North American Review. It will be published by Harper & Brothers in book form later in the year.

A NEW magazine devoted to the interests of the colored race, called the Voice of the Negro, has begun publication in Atlanta, Ga. The most important paper in the first issue is a study of "The Negro as a Political Factor," by Kelly Miller.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly the first number of The Artist Engraver, a quarterly magazine of original work. The January number will contain an etching by Professor A. Legros, an engraving on copper by William Strang, a woodcut by C. H. Shannon, a lithograph by Joseph Pennell and an etching by D. Y. Cameron.

PERSONAL NOTES.

H. F. SAVAGE, for many years with E. & J. B. Young & Co., has joined the staff of travellers of the Frederick A. Stokes Company.

J. L. PERKINS, formerly of the Perkins Book Company, of New York, is now associated with J. D. Morris & Company, of Philadelphia.

ROBERT EMMONS LEE, of the H. M. Caldwell Co., was married at Allston, Mass., on December 24, to Florence, daughter of Charles Armstrong, of the firm of Geo. H. Walker & Co. lithographers, of Boston.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

ESTHER SINGLETON, the author of "French and English Furniture," just published by McClure, Phillips & Company, is preparing a bibliography of all the works to which she made reference while writing her book. This will be added to the second edition of "French and English Furniture," and should prove of value to specialists and collectors of furniture.

The Bulletin of Bibliography for January, (v. 3, No. 8,) contains the fourteenth part of the second series of George Watson Cole's bibliography of "Bermuda in Periodical Literature;" the first instalment of an index to

Book Lore and Bibliographer, by Aksel G. S. Josephson; "Quarterly Index to Library Reference Lists," by Mary G. Wilbur; also, the fourth part of Frederick W. Faxon's bibliography of "Ephemeral Bibelots."

OLD BOOK NOTES.

A FINE copy of the first edition of Scott's "Tales of My Landlord," four volumes, 1816, was sold at Sotheby's on the 7th inst. for £101. Mr. Quaritch was the purchaser.

AT Sotheby's, on December 12, a complete set of the Kelmscott Press publications, on paper, including the trial pages of the "Froissart," was sold for £255. The set originally cost about £143, so that an original investor need not yet worry over the inevitable fall in the price of Morris's in many respects overestimated work. But those who bought these books when prices were at floodtide will certainly feel uneasy. In 1900 a set realized £560, the highest price we believe that the books commanded in the auction room. A year later the price dropped to £500, since which time it has steadily declined, and we shouldn't be surprised if in ten years from now the price for a set on paper would settle down to £150. The vellum copies will probably hold their own better and longer.

AUCTION SALES.

NEW YORK CITY.—A meeting of creditors was called on January 11 by the assignee, A. G. Dickinson, Jr., for the purpose of getting the creditors to sign the composition agreement of 59¼ per cent. and to release the assignee, thus saving the expenses of an accountant through the court, which Mr. Dickinson stated would cost about one thousand dollars. The three larger creditors, who constituted a Committee of Creditors to work with the assignee, refused to sign this agreement unless expenses amounting to about $480, which they incurred, such as the services of expert account, $100, disbursements, filing petition in bankruptcy and attorneys fees, $225, were paid. Mr. Dickinson refused to pay these expenses, claiming that he had no right to do so. Several of the creditors signed the agreement, but Mr. Dickinson said the settlement would not go through unless all creditors signed. The attorney for Mr. Dickinson will endeavor to have the attorney's fees reduced, and Mr. Dickinson stated he would be willing to allow a fair amount for the committee's expenses. If all creditors agree to accept pro rata what there is, settlement will be made without delay. The bankruptcy proceedings have been adjourned from time to time and lie dormant.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

JOHN MURRAY, London, is about to publish "Recent Excavations in the Roman Forum," by Mrs. Burton Brown.

J. M. DENT & Co., London, will publish in their Temple Series the biography of Robert Browning that Professor Edward Dowden has just completed.

METHUEN & Co. will publish immediately a new story by Robert Hichens entitled, "Woman and the Fan." The same firm will publish a novel by Mrs. Baillie Reynolds called "Phoebe in Fetters."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish in the spring a novel entitled "Joan of the Alley," by Frederick Orin Bartlett, of Cambridge, who won the first prize of $500 awarded by The Ladies' Home Journal for the best short story.

THE Chicago Stationers' Association will give its second annual dinner on January 23 at 6:30 P.M., at the Auditorium Hotel. Tickets at $2.50 each may be obtained of M. M. Bear, chairman of the Banquet Committee, at 57 Washington Street, Chicago.

THE BROADWAY PUBLISHING COMPANY has published an "Official History of Freemasonry," by William H. Grimshaw, with an introduction by Joseph Tyler Butts. The author is a negro, connected with the Library of Congress, and is a Mason of high rank.

GIBBINGS & Co., 18 Bury Street, Bloomsbury, W. C., London, announce the seventh and concluding volume of "Slang and its Analogues," a dictionary of slang and colloquial English from earliest times, on historical principles, including synonyms in English, French and other languages, begun by John S. Farmer and the late William Ernest Henley nearly twenty years ago.

JACK PLEASANTS, the hero of "The Quick and the Dead," by Amélie Rives, whose cousin he was, died at Richmond, Va., January 6. During the boom period in Virginia, while the town of Glasgow was being built, Pleasants was private secretary to General Fitzhugh Lee. In later years he was deputy clerk to the United States District Court at Richmond under his father, Mathew J. Pleasants.

REILLY & BRITTON, of Chicago, the sole selling agents of the authentic "Webster's Unabridged Dictionary," published by G. & C. Merriam & Co., report that since July last their sales of the book have reached a total of 25,000 copies. Cupples & Leon, who have acted as New York agents for Reilly & Britton, relinquished their agency on December 31, and all orders, inquiries, etc., should be sent either direct to Reilly & Britton at Chicago, or to the G. & C. Merriam Co., Springfield, Mass.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a volume entitled "Bog-Trotting for Orchids," by Grace G. Niles, with colored illustrations showing the orchids in their natural colors and in their native surroundings; a "Life of Captain James Lawrence," by Commander Albert Gleaves, with an introduction by Admiral Dewey; also, "Old Paths and Legends of New England," by Katherine M. Abbott, in which the author will reproduce the legends of the Connecticut Valley and the White and Green Mountains.

THERE is to be a new issue of Cassell's National Library, which, in enlarged and improved form in attractive cloth covers, will include a large number of new volumes. "Silas Marner" comes first, to be followed weekly by "A Sentimental Journey," "Richard II," "Evelyn's Diary," selections from Browning and Tennyson, "Horace Walpole's Letters," Hazlitt's and Emerson's essays, "Sartor Resartus," and Thackeray's "Four Georges." Professor Henry Morley's introductions were a valuable feature of the old issue, and many "eminent hands" will perform a like duty for the new volumes.

ROBERT GRIER COOKE, New York, will publish shortly a volume entitled "A Little Tragedy at Tien Tsin, and Other Stories from Elsewhere," by Frances Aymar Mathews, author of "My Lady Peggy Goes to Town." Chinese tales predominate, but, as the title indicates, there are also stories from other lands, and so well has Miss Mathews reflected in them the life and spirit of these various countries that the reader may well imagine himself seated on the magic carpet of the Arabian Nights, and being transported in a most delightful way from place to place, without further effort on his part. The title-story has been translated into the Spanish, Portuguese and Norwegian languages. The book is to be attractively presented, with an artistic cover design in three colors.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish shortly a "Life of William Penn," by Augustus C. Buell, which will contain much matter hitherto unpublished and sixteen illustrations; also, "The Man Roosevelt," a "personal sketch," by Francis E. Leupp, who aims to furnish a true picture of President Roosevelt in his relations with and attitude toward the "bosses" and the reformers, the workingmen and the capitalists, the South and the negro, his cabinet and his critics, war and peace, religion and amusement, his friends and his enemies, and his home and family. They have in preparation a volume on "School and College Sports," by Ralph Henry Barbour, author of some popular college stories, which will be a sort of encyclopedia of this subject. Although Mr. Barbour is writing the full text, every subject in it will be supervised and edited by an expert. Besides general descriptive matter, it will contain tables of records, which, being changed from year to year, will give the book all the advantages of an annual.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. announce the following among their novels for the spring season: "My Friend Prospero," by Henry Harland; "The Silent Places," by Stewart Edward White; "He That Eateth Bread with Me," by H. A. Mitchell Keays; "Daughters of Desperation," by Hildegard Brooks; "The Admirable Tinker," by Edgar Jepson; "The Picaroons," by Gelett Burgess and Will Irwin; "Said, the Fisherman," by Marmaduke Pickthall; "Debonnaire," by W. F. Payson; "Heart of My Heart," by Ellis Meredith; "A Little Union Scout," by Joel Chandler Harris; "Susannah and One Elder," by Madame Albanesi; a South American story, by O. Henry, and novels by Shan Bullock and Florence Wilkinson. Among their more serious books they announce a new volume by Charles Wagner; "Trusts of To-day," by Gilbert Holland Montague; "The Shame of the Cities," by Lincoln Steffens; "Human Work," by Charlotte Perkins Gilman; "Making a Home," by E. P. Powell; "Russian Literature," by Prince Kropotkin; and in the Contemporary Men of Letters series "Charles Dudley Warner," by Mrs. James T. Fields; "William Butler Yeats and the Irish Literary Revival," by Horatio Sheafe Krans.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS will bring out early this year a volume in the secondary series of their Constructive Bible Studies, in which two volumes have already been published, viz.: "The Priestly Element in the Old Testament," by President W. R. Harper, in the University Series, and "The Life of Christ," by Professors Ernest D. Burton and Shailer Mathews, in the Academy and College Series. The forthcoming volume will be entitled "The Gospel of Mark," by Professor Ernest D. Burton. This series is intended to meet the needs of the modern Sunday-school and of Bible classes in academies and universities. In its ultimate scope the plan will furnish Bible studies suited to the varying needs of the Sunday-school pupil, as he progresses through the kindergarten, and the elementary and secondary divisions of the school, and also volumes of a more advanced character adapted to the use of adult classes and of students in colleges and theological schools. The plan includes five series of books, as follows: first, kindergarten; second, elementary; third, secondary; fourth, academy and college, and fifth, university. The supervising editors are President William Harper and Professor Edward D. Burton.

English Literature AN ILLUSTRATED RECORD VOLUMES II. AND IV.

Illustrated with Colour-plates, Photogravures, Wood engravings and Many Lithographic Facsimiles; also a Large Number of the Best Accredited Portraits of English Authors, Autographs, Title-pages, Caricatures, Facsimiles, Etc.

In four volumes, Imp. 8vo, cloth, $24 net; half morocco, $40 net

"Although there have been histories of English literature almost without number the present work is distinctly a novel and original work. Except to the scholar or the special student the average literary history of any country is a dryas dust combination of dreary facts, for the historian rarely has space in which to illuminate his story with those side-lights of fancy through which history may be made at once accurate and entertaining. In the present work, the publishers and the historians have labored hand in hand, both the text and the reproductions of rare documents giving it a general interest which it could not obtain by any other means. It appeals both to the keen insight of the student and to the legitimate curiosity of the general reader."—The Boston Transcript.

Professor of English Literature in Yale College.

SHE THAT HESITATES

By Harris Dickson, <sup>author</sup><sub>of</sub> The Black Wolf's Breed

"A splendid novel of adventure founded on a legend that the beautiful wife of Alexis, the son of Peter the Great, found her way to Louisiana. There is excitement from beginning to end—plenty of intrigue and fighting."—The New York Sun.

THE TORCH

By Herbert M. Hopkins, <sup>author</sup><sub>of</sub> The Fighting Bishop

"All the various sides of life in a big university have never been presented so comprehensively, and with such infinite variety, as in this story of 'The Torch.' The final interview between a professor and the President will be remembered among the scenes in American fiction that it is really a pleasure to remember."—The New York Commercial Advertiser.

TOMORROW'S TANGLE

Geraldine Bonner's vivid novel of the days of '49

"Forceful, interesting and discreetly handled. One of the famous bonanza kings is said to be the chief actor. The aspects of Mormonism are depicted with real power. It is a novel not of mere promise, but an exceedingly praiseworthy performance."—The Philadelphia Press.
